Valuable Lands For Sale.

THE subscriber will sell at public sale, on Tuesday the 14th of April next, at 12 o'clock the following lot and tracts of land; viz. One, containing twenty nine acres and within about 400 yards of the Pittsburgh and Philadelphia turnpike road—the second, containing one and a sixth acre, fronting on said turnpike, being part of the Bull-penn's tract—and third, his interest (being one eighth) in the bullock-penn's tract containing, 350 acres, with dwelling houses, orchards, meadow and every other improvment, equal if not superior to any in the neighbourhood of Pittsburgh. This property is well situated and of the best quality, and within six miles of Pittsburgh, and so well known as to need no particular description—its contiguity to Pittsburgh, and the turnpike are sufficient recommendations.

Terms of sale will be made known at Joseph Wahl's on the premises the place of sale.

The subscriber offers for sale, a large three story GRIST MILL, with two water wheels, three pair of stones and three bolting chests—a SAW-MILL, and a large commodious Dwelling House, suitable for a tavern, convenient to the mills, and from 50 to 100 acres of land, containing fine coal banks and a first rate stone Mill-dam; situate in Noblestown, Allegheny county.

If this property is not sold by private sale before Friday the 27th of March, it will on that day be offered at public sale on the premises.

Terms of sale made known on the day of sale

LEGISLATIVE LEARNING.

MR. DENHAM, a member of the legislature of Ohio, from Clermont county, could neither READ nor WRITE. It is said his mother informed him after the Indian fashion, what the provisions of the old laws of Ohio were; his father pointed out their defects, and Messrs. Hammond, Swan, and Tupper taught him how to vote on the amendments. He uniformly voted for dispensing with the PRINTING of bills, and he was too modest to attempt the reading and delivering a message to the senate. A parol power of attorney was given a friend to sign a receipt for his pay!!

Columbus Gaz.

NASHVILLE, Jan. 31.

UNITED STATES' BRANCH BANK.

We learn from a source entitled to confidence, that the officers of the Bank of the United States, have taken into consideration the act of the last session of our Legislature, intended by its authors, virtually to prevent the establishment of a Branch in this state, and have determined that it is inoperative and nugatory, and that they will, notwithstanding the hostility of the Legislature, give the people of Tennessee a branch of that institution.—Whig.

From the Georgia Journal Feb. 10.

The military called for by the late requisition are marching with alacrity to Hartford, the place of rendezvous. The companies from Wilkes and Elbert passed through this place on Saturday and Sunday last. From the other counties they have proceeded to their destination by nearer routes. Rumour, ever busy in catering for credulity, has more than once within the last week represented General Jackson to have arrived at fort Hawkins, Clinton, & half a dozen other places where he certainly had not been. It was reported too, that from 1000 to 1500 Tennessee volunteers would accompany him; of this we know nothing; that he is already in the Creek nation, or on his way there we have no doubt; but whether at the head of many volunteers, or attended only by the officers of his staff, is uncertain. Since our last paper, we have no information that any further mischief has been done by the Indians. It is the opinion of many intelligent persons, that the savages from the nature of their country, can elude a decisive engagement, and procrastinate the war almost at pleasure.

We think it unfortunate, that the militia had not been called out in the first instance, for the full term authorized by law. If the object for which their services were required had been sooner accomplished, their discharge would have followed as a matter of course.

After the above was in type and just before our paper went to press, we learned, that the governor has received a letter from Gen. Jackson, dated from Jackson county in this state. The General was proceeding to Fort Hawkins, and there is little doubt but he arrived there yesterday, as the firing of cannon in that direction was distinctly heard. The quotas of militia from Green and Oglethorp passed on yesterday for the general rendezvous.

On Wednesday night last, the office of the prothonotary of the district court for the city and county of Philadelphia, in the east wing of the state-house, was entered by some villain or villains, by cutting through the door near the lock; two of the drawers of the desk were forced open, and they succeeded in getting away with about fifty dollars in bank notes.—We learn also, that an unsuccessful attempt was made, the same night, to enter the sheriff's office.—If the commissioners do not secure the public offices with sufficient doors and fastenings, from such depredations, it is time, citizens, to be on your guard. The titles of one half of the real estate in the city and county, depend upon the records in those offices. If a few dollars are sufficient inducement for breaking open one of them, how much stronger is the inducement to break them, to destroy the foundation of the titles to a valuable real estate? Amer. Cen.

UTICA, (N. Y.) Feb. 17.

Execution.—The execution of the prisoners at Rome, was to have taken place on Friday last, but was prevented by the pardon granted by the Legislature. This pardon was received by Mr. Sheriff Cooper, on Wednesday evening, and was communicated to the prisoners the next day. O'Brien said that he was sorry—that he had made up his mind to die, and that he rather preferred death to perpetual imprisonment. But as it was the will of the Lord he would submit. Some of the others expressed their satisfaction. Some said nothing. Harris and O'Brien are to be imprisoned in the state prison at Auburn, at hard labour during their lives. Linus is to be imprisoned in like manner for fourteen years. Denny and Pratt were pardoned unconditionally. They were under sentence to the state prison for other offences, the former for five years, the latter for three. All have been removed to the prison at Auburn.

From the London Statesman.

SINGULAR RELATION.

We lately inserted the extraordinary case of Jean de Mousin, in the reign of Charles II.—The following is equally singular—though more tragical, and equally well authenticated, though we cannot remember the precise time of the transaction. It furnishes an additional warning to Juries to beware how they exercise their trust.

A gentleman died possessed of a very considerable fortune, which he left to his only child, a daughter, and appointed his brother to be guardian, and executor of his will. The young lady was then about 18; and if she happened to die unmarried, or, if married, without children, her fortune was left to her guardian and to his heirs. As the interest of the uncle was now incompatible with the life of the niece, several other relations hinted, that it would not be proper for them to live together. Whether they were willing to prevent any occasion of slander against the uncle, in case of the young lady's death; whether they had apprehension of her being in danger; or whether they were only discontented with the father's disposition of his fortune and therefore propagated rumors to the prejudice of those who possessed it, cannot be known; the uncle, however, took his niece to his house near Epping Forest, and soon afterwards she disappeared.

Great enquiry was made after her, and it appearing, that the day she was missing, she went out with her uncle into the forest, and that he returned without her, he was taken into custody, and a few days afterwards he went through a long examination, in which he acknowledged, that he went out with her, and pretended that she found means to loiter behind him as they were returning home; that he sought her in the forest as soon as he missed her; and that he knew not where she was, or what was become of her. This account was thought improbable, and his apparent interest in the death of his ward, and perhaps the petulant zeal of other relations, concurred to raise and strengthen suspicions against him, and he was detained in custody. Some new circumstances were every day rising against him. It was found that the young lady had been addressed by a neighbouring gentleman, who had, a few days before she was missing, set out on a journey to the north; and that she had declared she would marry him when he returned; that her uncle had frequently expressed his disapprobation of the match in very strong terms: that she often wept and reproached him with unkindness and an abuse of his power. A woman was also produced, who swore that on the day the young lady was missing, about 11 o'clock in the forenoon, she was coming through the forest, and heard a woman's voice expostulating with great eagerness; upon which she drew near the place and, before she saw any person, heard the voice say, "Don't kill me, uncle; don't kill me;" upon which she was greatly terrified, and immediately hearing the report of a fire-arm very near, she made all the haste she could from the spot, but could not rest in her mind, till she had told what had happened. Such was the general impatience to punish a man, who had murdered his niece to inherit her fortune, that upon this evidence he was condemned and executed.

About ten days after the execution the young lady came home. It appeared, however, that what all the witnesses had sworn was true, and the fact was thus circumstanced:—The young lady declared, that having previously agreed to go off with the gentleman that courted her, he had given out that he was going a long journey to the north; but that he waited concealed at a little house near the skirts of the forest, till the time appointed, which was the day she disappeared. That he had horses ready for himself and her, and was attended by two servants, also on horseback—That as she was walking with her uncle, he reproached her with persisting in her resolution to marry a man of whom he disapproved; and after much altercation she said with some heat, "If I have set my heart upon it, if I don't marry him it will be my death—and don't kill me, uncle—don't kill me;"—that just as she had pronounced these words, she heard a fire arm discharged very near her, at which she started, and immediately afterwards saw a man come forward from among the trees, with a wood pigeon in his hand which he had just shot. That coming near the place appointed for their rendezvous, she formed a pretence to let her uncle go on before her, and her suitor being here waiting with a horse, she mounted and immediately rode off. That instead of going into the north, they retired to a house, in which he had taken lodgings, near Windsor, where they were married the same day, and in about a week went a journey of pleasure to France, from whence when they returned, they first heard of the misfortune which they had inadvertently brought upon their uncle. So uncertain is human testimony, even when the witnesses are sincere, and so necessary is a cool and dispassionate inquiry and determination, with respect to crimes that are enormous in the highest degree, and committed with every possible aggravation.

Caution to Persons making Wills.

Respecting the will of Mr. Elliot, of Somer's Town, deceased, Sir John Nichol said, (in the Prerogative Court, Doctor's Commons,) he was anxious to throw out a general caution, and to professional men in particular. In their receiving instructions from a testator to make his will (if their evidence was to be received as otherwise than doubtful,) they would be particularly careful to receive the instructions from the hands of the testator himself, who should be acquainted with the contents, and on no pretence to destroy, but to preserve such instructions, for the purpose of being produced in evidence. He hoped, through some medium or other, this caution would be made known to professional men in general, and in future attended to by them as a matter of importance.

Copper Tree.—At the beautiful and magnificent palace of the duke of Devonshire, Catsworth, on the banks of a fine piece of water, is a tree of copper representing a willow, from every leaf of which water is made to issue, by the turning of a cock, so as to form an artificial shower.

Died suddenly, at his seat, Arm-House, in the county of Roscommon, on the 30th November last, Thomas O'Connor, Esq. brother of the late Dominick O'Connor Don, of Cloonalis, and of the present Alexander O'Connor Don, now the only lineal male descendant of Roderick O'Conor Don, King of Connaught, and Monarch of Ireland.

The London Star, of December 17, speaking of the arrival of the U. States' ship Franklin, says—"Some may feel a little sore at the political progress of our quondam Colonists, in thus being able to send out ships of such a class, bearing an independent flag, and carrying an Ambassador to their former Parent. But such a feeling is unworthy of a great nation. May the period be not far distant, when we shall have to hail the arrival of an ambassador from the Spanish colonies of America, in circumstances of as honorable a state as those in which we are now pleased to behold an Ambassador from our own former colonies, come among us as the Representatives of a distinct and independent people!"

INHUMAN.

The head of a mendicant woman, who lately died at the hospital of St. Thomas London, was retained by the faculty, and the body given to her son, a young sailor, for burial. The son indignant at the outrage, complained to the lord mayor. He remonstrated in manly terms against the unnatural act of mutilating his mother, and expressed his determination of not burying her haggard corpse until the dissected member was restored. His lordship condemned the conduct of the surgeons, and directed Mr. Cartright, the marshalman, to attend the complainant to St. Thomas, and learn the cause of their persisting in such cruelty. The marshalman, on his return, informed that the seaman's father had sold his mother's head to the surgeons for one pound!

An English captain, returning from the Indies having touched on the coast of Guinea, took on board an ape that appeared to be endowed with extraordinary mildness & intelligence. The animal, during the voyage, perfectly answered the captain's expectations, he assisted in the cookery, and in his business always rested himself on his hams, holding a stick in one hand, and appeared particular attentive in extinguishing the sparks that in any way caused a danger of fire. This animal, so interesting for observation, died on the voyage, a victim to the ill usage of the second in command. This man caused him to be unjustly punished. The ape submitted to the chastisement with the most affecting resignation, during which he held up his hands in a supplicating attitude, as if imploring the cessation of his sufferings.—From that moment he obstinately refused every kind of nourishment, and died after an illness of five days.

Extract of a letter from Londonderry, (Ireland) to a gentleman in New-York, dated 5th December, 1817.

"Our citizens are horror struck; the celebrated Rev. Dr. Black, put a period to his existence on the 3d inst. at half past 3 in the evening, in the presence of several spectators. He passed through the toll gate on the bridge, took off his hat and coat gave them to a boy who was passing, and instantly plunged into the river. He was observed to use considerable efforts to force himself under the water, and at length succeeded, before his design could be prevented by those who put off to avert the shocking catastrophe. Remorse of conscience for his treatment of the Rev. Dr. Dickson and the widow of the Rev. Mr. Porter, the latter of whom was hung at his own meeting-house door, in the rebellion of 1798, is supposed to have been the cause of this dreadful self murder; as the Doctor was wallowing in riches, and in the full enjoyment of Lord Castlereagh's favours."

"But a wounded conscience who can bear?"

NOTICE

THE annual meeting of the PITTSBURGH BIBLE SOCIETY will be held on the 2d Monday of March 1818, in the 1st Presbyterian church at 3 o'clock. The members are requested to attend for the purpose of electing managers for the ensuing year; for paying their annual contributions, and attending to the other necessary business of the society. In the evening at candle light, an appropriate sermon will be delivered by the reverend JOHN BLACK, and a collection taken up for aiding the funds of the society—after which the annual report of its proceedings for the last year will be publicly read.

FRANCIS HERRON, Sec.

PITTSBURGH.

FRIDAY, MARCH 6, 1818.

A private letter from New Orleans, of the 26th ultimo, to a gentleman in this city, furnishes the following information from Fort Scott: "Lieut. Sharp, of the army, has this moment arrived here from Fort Scott, which post he left on the 10th inst. He states, that not any of the provisions (forwarded from New Orleans by the contractor) had reached there; one of the vessels had returned to Mobile, the other supposed to be lost at sea, as nothing has been heard of her since she left here. It appears from the statement of lieu S. that there is no possible hope of getting provisions on to that place, as the river is lined with Indians, and every mode of conveyance cut off by them. The troops at Fort Scott will have to fall down to the mouth of the Apalachicola, at which place they can be supplied, otherwise they must go to Fort Hawkins."

A previous letter from the same gentleman, mentions, that a considerable quantity of provisions, forwarded from New Orleans for the army, by way of Pensacola, had been stopped and turned back by the Spanish authorities at that place, who refused permission to transport the supplies up the Escambia.—Nat. Intel. of Feb. 24.

The public debt, on the first of January last, was estimated at ninety-nine millions, four thousand eight hundred dollars and fifty-one cents!!!

The bill lately reported by col. R. M. Johnson, chairman of the military committee, providing relief for the widows, the widowed mothers, and the orphan children, of soldiers who lost their lives in the revolutionary war, for the establishment of our independence, and in the late war for the protection of that independence, has been rejected by the house of representatives of the United States!!

Our revenue is now twenty-five millions of dollars per annum, out of which this little sum would not be perceived. We have no internal taxes, nor any oppressive burdens to bear; yet, our revenue is more than sufficient to meet all the expences and engagements of the government. Liberal appropriations are made to adorn the president's house, and the public square about the capitol, but for the suffering widow and helpless orphan there is none to spare.

An arrival at Charleston states, that all was quiet at Amelia Island up to the 8th inst. Colonel Bankhead had given great satisfaction both as a civil magistrate and a military commander, by his endeavors to do justice to all. Commodore Aury, with his two brigs of war, the American Libre and Mexican Congress was expected to sail for South America in about 8 days.

Harrisburgh, Feb. 28.

STATE LEGISLATURE.

In the House of Representatives some business of a general character has been disposed of in the past week. Mr. M'Kean's bill relating to the limitation of actions in trials of ejectment, better known by the name of the squatter's bill, was debated on Monday and Tuesday, and finally negatived by a majority of one vote. The bill for the relief of Dickinson college was also discussed on two days, and met the same fate with the above, with the exception of the 2nd section, which relinquishes the claim of the Commonwealth to the college lands. The bill for the creation of two additional Judges of the Supreme Court appears to be in peril from the votes taken on it on Friday; as although the motion to postpone it beyond the session was negatived by a majority of three, yet the motion to go into a consideration of it was refused.

A resolution offered some time ago by Mr. Jenks of Bucks county, requesting our Senators and Representatives in Congress, to use their exertions in favor of the passage of a law for the payment of the delinquent militia fines, now collecting in this State by the United States officers, into the State Treasury, was adopted in the H. R. on Tuesday. The bill laying an additional duty of one per cent on sales at auction, to be appropriated in aid of the Schuylkill canal, was considered on Friday, and the 1st section——which lays the duty——was agreed to, in committee of the whole. The other sections of the bill are considered in peril.

Remarking on the report of the election contesting committee, the editor of the Franklin Repository says:

For those who are not obliged, as we are, to read this production, it may suffice to be informed, that the committee state, "The Petitioners, (197 in number) make many charges of fraud, violence and corruption"——that "Of the truth of these charges the committee know nothing"——and conclude with stating, "their DETERMINATION, that the election referred to them is legal and valid."

It will be recollected that an early discovery of such a determination in the majority, was the reason assigned by certain of the petitioners for withdrawing from the contest.

Extract of a letter dated,

NEW-ORLEANS, Jan. 24.

"New-Orleans at this season of the year exhibits all the bustle of a great fair Here are crowded together multitudes of sellers and buyers from Alabama to Nachitoches, and North to Kentucky, Ohio, and the extreme of Missouri.—All seem eager to grasp the object, and many obtain it, for it is a country richer in its productions, than if it possessed the mines of Mexico. Cotton is abundant, and produce arrives at this place as though it grew in floating down the river. I have seen the steam boat arrive with 800 bales of cotton on deck, and this repeated again and again. It is judged that there will be more produce brought to this city during the present, than any former season.

"The weather has been colder here this winter, than has been known for many years.—The Thermometer has been as low as 27 degrees. I have seen ice two inches thick, & the ground has been covered with snow for several days."

The Charleston Courier of the 19th ult. makes the following timely remarks:—

"THE RACES, this year, have been uncommonly meagre and uninteresting—offering little to excite or reward attention. Not one handsome race—not many handsome ladies—and very few handsome equipages have been exhibited on the course. We are growing certainly more serious—perhaps, more intellectual.

"There was a time when this festival brought with it a singular elevation and buoyancy of spirits—when our feelings partook of the rapidity of the race, and chased each other, like fairies in a circle. The meeting of the town and country—the exchange of the comforts, luxuries and courtesies of life, covered our city with the garb of gaiety. It was indeed the youth of the year—when all our joys were in bud and bloom—and society was fragrant, as with the new born jessamine. It was a week of witchery and enchantment—in which it was almost impossible—if not criminal, to be sad. It was hailed in the dreams of youth, and relaxed the sternness of age. Then lovers baited their hooks, and maidens cast their nets, and gold fishes were caught in abundance. Folly had a licence for her antics—fortune for her deceptions—and fashion for her extravagance.

"Such were the Races—the jubilee of South Carolina. But their recent exhibition has been attended with very little of their former gladness or lustre. The distressing affliction of our city during the last summer, has destroyed in a great measure our aptitude for pleasant emotions.—The atmosphere of grief has damped our feelings—& our harp is hung upon the willows. In the darkness of night colors disappear—In the darkness of sorrow, pleasures vanish.—"How can we sing," asked the Israelites, "in a strange land." How can this city forget its recent sufferings, and plunge into the clamorous festivities of the season. All that we see, and all that we remember, is calculated to withdraw our attention from minor considerations, and to direct it to the awful, and uncertain race of life."

"Far hence let folly's train retire,
For man should mourn below;
With sober hand attune the lyre
And thrill the chords of wo.

Stop, mortal stop thy mad career,
Death's never-beating charioteer
Relentless drives his rapid way.
While mournful millions, bow submissive to his sway."

The following schedule exhibits an interesting picture of the population of Louisiana; digested from the life of General Jackson, lately published, and detailing the various forces which rallied at New-Orleans to oppose the invasion of the British army during the late war:

Americans; English; Scotch; Irish; European, St. Domingo, and native French, whites, mullattos; blacks; European, South American, Interior, and West Indian Spaniards; Portuguese; Italians; Germans. Free people of colour of all hues: Pirates; Smugglers; and Renegadoes from every country. Extraordinary indeed must be the man whose genius, address, and authority united in one brave and patriotic band, individuals so various in circumstances of birth, habits, and principles. That man was Jackson. True Amer.

By the schr. Josephine, 19 days from Laguira, we learn that, in the latter part of Dec. there had been a general engagement between the Patriot and Royal armies under Bolivar and Morillo, in which the former was completely defeated.

N. Y. Mer. Adv.

The London Courier says, the new Dey of Algiers has had a narrow escape from the fate of his predecessors. Being informed of the project of the soldiery, he prudently withdrew to a fortress, the guns of which commanded the town.—The rebels attempted to dislodge him, but they failed, and ten of the ringleaders were seized and strangled.—Whether this summary punishment will avert, or only protract, the same operation upon the Dey himself, it would be hazardous to conjecture.

LEGISLATURE OF NEW-YORK.

General Montgomery.—Mr. Meigs, from the committee to whom was referred the resolution of the Honourable the Assembly, relative to the removal of the remains of the gallant General Montgomery, from Quebec to this State—REPORTED—That the body of GENERAL RICHLAND MONTGOMERY was found on the field of battle where he fell, by a man now living, who buried it near that spot. That a common path or road is practised over the place of interment, which is undistinguished by any respectful mark, and is perhaps unknown to all but the person who buried the body, who is about ninety years of age, and now resides in that vicinity, and who is believed to be capable of identifying the grave.

The committee cannot withhold their conviction that the chivalric patriotism of this youthful hero who offered himself and became one of the earliest sacrifices in the glorious cause of liberty, has made the deepest impression upon every patriotic American. And that especially this state, who claims Gen. Montgomery as one of her citizens, will use the present occasion to express her proud recollection of his virtues as a citizen and soldier; and will now testify her esteem and gratitude, by performing an act of honour to the memory of this one of her worthiest sons. The committee therefore pray for leave to introduce a bill for the attainment of this object.

Leave being given, Mr. Meigs, brought in the said bill, entitled "an act of honor to the memory of Gen. Montgomery," which was read twice and committed to a committee of the whole.

The following very singular fact in Natural History, is taken from Pierson's Life of Dr. Buchanan—one of the most entertaining and interesting Biographical works in the English language.

"Tell H. that I write this at the bottom of the lofty mountain, called Cape Cornovin, whose rocky head seems to overhang its base. The birds which build the pendulous nests are here numerous. At night each of their little habitations is lighted up, as if to see company.—The sagacious little bird fastens a bit of clay to the top of the nest, and then picks up a fire-fly, and sticks it to the clay to illuminate the dwelling, which consists of two rooms. Sometimes there are three or four fire flies, and their blaze of light in the little cell dazzles the eyes of the bats, which often kill these birds.

able Real estate for sale.

SUANT to the last Will and Testament of the late Col. RICHARD BROWN, deceased I NOW OFFER FOR SALE,

The Farm on which he resided,

On the Ohio River, in Holliday's Cove, in Brook County, Virginia.

This Estate consists of about 700 Acres of Land, 250 of which is a rich Island, the remainder principally second bottom and upland; that part of the upland which is not tillable, is covered with timber suitable for furnishing the Island and tillable part with fencing and building timber. There is between 150 and 200 acres cleared and under cultivation, a suitable proportion of which in good meadow land. The buildings consist in two log dwelling houses and a log barn with under story of stone. It is well supplied with very fine springs of good water.

The situation of this property on the Ohio River five miles from the flourishing Town of Steubenville, and in the neighbourhood of several Merchant Mills, Iron Works, &c. renders it a desirable object to a person who would wish to farm extensively, as he would probably at all times find a good market at his door for the produce of his farm. A part of the purchase will be required in hand, and for the remainder a reasonable credit will be given.

Removal.

THE subscriber informs the public generally that he has removed from the city of Pittsburgh to Washington county, near Canonsburgh where he is ready to furnish all kinds of MACHINERY, employed in Woolen and Cotton Factories; such as Wool machines, Billys, Jennys, Throssels, Roving and Drawing. From the advantage of having water power to drive his machinery employed in the making of these articles, he will be able to furnish customers on lower terms than heretofore. Apply for machinery to Messrs M'Clurgs & M'Knight, at their Foundery, Pittsburgh, where machinery will be delivered or to the subscriber near Cannonsburgh.

JAMES CUMMINGS.
